

Beau Bridges has appeared in over fifty feature films, including "The Other Side of the Mountain," "Norma Rae," "Heart Like a Wheel," "Sordid Lives," "Max Payne," and "The Fabulous Baker Boys" opposite his brother Jeff for which Beau received the Best Supporting Actor Award from the National Society of Film Critics. In television, Bridges has received twelve Emmy nominations and won three, along with two Golden Globes, for "Without Warning: The James Brady Story," "The Positively True Adventures of the Alleged Texas Cheerleader-Murdering Mom," and "The Second Civil War." His recent guest star roles on "My Name Is Earl" and "Desperate Housewives" garnered Emmy nominations for both. He won a 2009 Grammy for Al Gore's "An Inconvenient Truth" in the category of Best Spoken Word Album. Beau was inspired by his father Lloyd to work towards promoting and preserving a healthy planet.