

John Murdock's law practice, based in Santa Monica, CA, focuses on environmental issues and includes situations involving EIRs relating to proposed housing and commercial developments. He represents citizen groups and individuals in cases involving zoning and land-use laws and enforcement of environmental laws including CEQA and the California Coastal Act, as well as constitutional rights under California law and the Federal Civil Rights Act of 1983.